

#CAAW 2017

What Clinical Audit Support Centre have planned for the week

Clinical Audit Awareness Week aka #CAAW takes place this year from Monday 20th to Friday 24th November. Here are our plans:

Patient 1st

On 21 November we are speaking at the Patient First event in London. The talk will focus on junior doctor engagement in clinical audit and QI. We will announce our 2017 award winners.

On 24 November we will publish the posters from all of the junior doctor finalists who entered our 2017 competitions. This will include the winning entries. This is your chance to review their real world projects.

24 Nov

Interactive resources

We understand that many clinical audit and QI teams use #CAAW as an opportunity to promote their work by running local awareness sessions. We have created a number of new interactive resources that raise the profile of clinical audit in a fun way. Our DJ Audit pop quiz and word-link are big improvements on our old crosswords!

Training sessions

We are running a number of training sessions during #CAAW. These provide valuable feedback from those working in healthcare. We will share key discussions.

Twitter action

Increasingly audit and QI staff use Twitter to comment and keep in touch. There will be lots of tweeting from CASC via @cascleicester in #CAAW

Podcasts

We've recorded a number of new podcasts looking at audit in Mental Health and the community. Plus views on national audits.

TED Useful stuff

It is fun to play games during #CAAW but we've also created some educational resources that will be of interest to healthcare professionals: 6 invaluable TED talks, tips for effective audit, is it an audit tool, how to be a change agent, etc.

All resources and materials will be available free of charge via our website www.clinicalauditsupport.com. You can also contact us direct via (0116) 264 3411 or at info@clinicalauditsupport.com We wish everyone a busy and successful #CAAW. Let's work together to make clinical audit beneficial and meaningful, not dull.
