

THE HEALTH FOUNDATION'S LEARNING REPORT
The Improvement Journey

STUFF WE LIKE

We are big fans of the Health Foundation and often point our learners to their pocket guides, e.g. 'QI made simple', 'Evaluation: what to consider' etc. In May 2019, the Foundation released a 32-page learning report entitled 'The improvement journey'. This is a readable and invaluable document neatly featuring 3 key parts, as detailed in the section below...

THE 3 KEY ELEMENTS

Part I: focuses on why organisational improvement matters. We particularly like the sub-section entitled 'what does good look like' and the focus on work in East London, Western Sussex and Northumbria.

Part II: is entitled 'Building an organisational approach to improvement' and includes an excellent infographic that highlights 6 key elements to this work, including: assessing readiness, aligning activity, etc.

Part III: provides an overview (historical and current) of what national support is available in this field. The horizon scanning element of this section is useful and Box 5 provides details of some existing initiatives.

Those working in clinical audit, QI and patient safety will find this publication very useful and insightful. To access the publication click here.
