

NQICAN FORUM

STUFF WE LIKE

Over the years there have been many attempts to set up a user-friendly and helpful forum for clinical audit and QI professionals. Towards the end of 2017, the National Quality Improvement (including Clinical Audit) Network set up the National Networking and Sharing Forum (NNSF). I'd encourage all those working in audit and QI to join up and get involved.

THE 3 KEY ELEMENTS

CHAT

There are currently over 800 forum members = an enormous pool of experience and knowledge. Use one of the nine sub-forums to start a debate. Get people talking!

CONTRIBUTE

Arguably the best feature of the forum is the opportunity to share materials and knowledge. Upload documents, point others to useful websites, etc.

CHALLENGE

All the key national players can see the forum and NQICAN report to HQIP, NHS England, etc. So if something isn't right or could be better, use the forum to raise concerns and challenge.

The forum is open to all NHS staff and those directly involved in clinical audit. It is quick and easy to register and sign up. The website is <http://forum.nqican.org.uk>
